Dear [redacted]:

KQED has embarked on an initiative to create a news network among Bay Area news sites, blogs and producers entitled the Networked Journalism Project (the "Project"). This collaborative Project will explore a number of possibilities for ways in which KQED and organizations such as yours can work together to develop a mutually beneficial network to better gather news, create compelling journalism, and inform and interact with our communities.

We are pleased that you have accepted our invitation to join us as one of our partners in the Project, and that you are willing to contribute your time and ideas for making the Project fruitful.

KQED will pay you a [redacted] in appreciation for your participation in the project,

You and KQED may mutually agree that your participation in the Project would include that you will provide content for KQEDNews.org and/or KQED Public Radio. You agree that the terms and conditions on the attached "Networked Journalism Content Agreement" will apply to any content you provide to KQED. If these terms for providing content are acceptable to you, please sign and return the enclosed copy of the letter to the attention of Molly Samuel as soon as possible.

We very much look forward to your involvement in the Project.

Cordially,

Bruce Koon
